

When I grow up, I will be a good citizen by helping. There are more ways to help than you think. Here are just a couple of ways I can help.

Some things I can do to help are to become a nurse and help others. When I am a nurse I will help save lives. I will also help people when they need it most. After natural disasters, everyday things, or just when they need it. Everyone needs help sometimes. Some people don't know they do or they are too afraid to ask.

I will also help by volunteering and donating to charities. I will volunteer for the Eferm project, the salvation army, and many more. I will also donate to all of the charities. I will donate to schools and Breast Cancer Awareness. As you can see all of these places are here to help, and I will be part of that.

I will also follow the law and I won't do drugs. I will follow the law by being careful of what I do and think things all the way through before I do them. When I stay away from bad influences I won't do drugs or drink alcohol. I will stay with friends who keep moving me forward through my life, instead of being pushing me back.

I will also run for president. I will try to help people who don't have homes or need food. I will make jobs and forgive and forget the mistakes those people made. Those people could be good people who just mess up, but don't we all? I will help create bright futures for everyone I can.

I will be a good citizen and I will help my community. I can make a difference and so can you.
So what can you do.
